

National Trust Design of private water supply

Background

The existing water supply to the estate came from old boreholes and delivered an unreliable and poor quality supply.

Residential and farm properties on the estate demand a reliable and high quality source of water.

Project Description

A new water distribution system was designed and specified to meet the quality and usage demands of the tenants. This included designing upgrades to the existing borehole supply and including provision for mains supplies.